For Earth Week 2019, we need global change.

While that may seem insurmountable, let's think locally. How can we use the concepts behind the UN's Sustainable Development Goals in our lives, on our campus, and in Camden?

Come out to engage with other students, faculty, and staff to brainstorm ideas that use our collective capacity in partnerships to make Rutgers Camden a more sustainable place. Whether you are interested in social issues (hunger, poverty, good health, etc.), environmental issues (water quality, conservation, etc.), or a combination (sustainable cities), you will find like-minded people to engage with while eating delicious food.
